Priority

1. Applicant has not complied with one or more conditions for receiving the benefit of an earlier filing date under 35 U.S.C. 120 as follows:

An application in which the benefits of an earlier application are desired must contain a specific reference to the prior application(s) in the first sentence of the specification or in an application data sheet (37 CFR 1.78(a)(2) and (a)(5)).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

2. Claim 41 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as containing subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. Specifically, support could not be found in the originally filed specification for imitating the program mode using a keypad, entering the permanent access code using a keypad and entering a user access code using a keypad.

Double Patenting

3. Claim 40 is rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 3,14,20 of U.S. Patent No. 6359547.

Claim 40 is rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 10 and 13 of U.S. Patent No. 5617082.

Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the patented claims are narrower than the pending claims and include all the currently claimed limitations. Therefore, the pending claims would have been obvious in view of the patented claims.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in-

(1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effect under this subsection of a national application published under section 122(b) only if the international application designating the United States was published under Article 21(2)(a) of such treaty in the English language; or
(2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that a patent shall not be deemed filed in the United States for the purposes of this subsection based on the filing of an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a).

4. Claim 40 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being clearly anticipated by Vanderschel (US 5349345).

Vanderschel shows a method of assembly for an access control device, which includes a keypad 20, a processor circuit (figure 3 and a non-volatile memory for storing a permanent code- Manufacture Usage Code) see table 2, and col. 3 lines 6+.

The printer jack permits the reading of the code from the processor memory through a port other than the keypad.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claim 41 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Vanderschel.

Vanderschel shows a method of assembly for an access control device, which requires a permanent access code be entered prior to entering a user access code in the mode of programming the user access code. See col. 6 lines 15+. The difference between the claimed invention and the Vanderschel reference is that the code is entered in the claim using a keyboard, while the code of Vanderschel is entered using a key. Vanderschel shows that both keys and keyboards can equally be used to enter codes; the key code is entered using the key and the PIN is entered using the keyboard.

Therefore it would have been obvious to have used a keyboard for entering the required codes for the programming mode in Vanderschel to provide increased security since a keyed in code cannot be lost or misplaced like a physical key.
